

Vicki Rybl, Director of Life Cycle Assessment, WAP Sustainability

About Vicki

Vicki is Director of Life Cycle Assessment at WAP Sustainability – a full service sustainability consulting and software development firm. She brings more than a decade of experience in life cycle assessment, environmental product declaration, green building, and renewable energy development to her work. She specializes in carbon footprinting and EPD development work and has worked in a multitude of product sectors, but extensively in the building construction realm. She has been involved in the development of several LCAs and EPDs across the asphalt and road construction industries in North America. She works with clients from Fortune 500 companies to start-ups to help identify environmental impacts in their manufacturing processes and supply chains, supporting decarbonization, product optimization, and sustainability storytelling. She is an active member of the American Center for Life Cycle Assessment and is a Life Cycle Assessment Certified Professional.
